THE IRISH QUESTION

IRELAND may get home rule as a result of the Sinn Fein uprising in Dublin. The Sinn Feiners opposed Redmond and the Home Rule Bill and put themselves in the same boat with Carson's Ulster faction. England's sense of justice has been awakened by the difference in the treatment of the Belfast and Dublin revolutionaries. Mr. Asquith has appealed to all sections of Ireland and has visited both Dublin and Belfast in an effort to restore peace. He has been rebuffed in Belfast while he found Dublin willing to listen.

Proposals to disarm both Irish and Ulster Volunteers have been received with favor in the south of Ireland and with threats of resistance in the north. The leading business men of Belfast know what happened to Dublin and fear that Belfast may suffer the same way if the government decided to disarm the Ulster Volunteers. These Ulster Volunteers imported their arms from Germany and expressed willingness to accept Germany's help. Looking backward, Carson's Ulsterites appear in a worse light than the Sinn Feiners, also opponents of the Home Rule Bill. The only difference is that the former rebelled in time of peace and the latter in time of war.

Only by giving home rule to Ireland can the British government set itself right in American eyes. The government promised it and the bill has become law, but its operation has been suspended. Put it in operation and make Belfast keep the peace as Dublin has been forced to do and justice will be done. When a crisis impended in Belfast the Ulster Volunteers were disloyal to the crown. When a crisis came in Dublin the Irish Volunteers were loyal. As the "Manchester Guardian" says: "The work of suppression of disorder should now, as far as possible, be left to Irishmen themselves. Thus any bitterness that may be left behind will be domestic and therefore more quickly healed, and not anti-English."

For the sake of self-preservation Great Britain must hold Ireland because Ireland is the strategic key to England and northern Europe. By letting the Irish settle their own domestic affairs England will save herself trouble and Ireland will remain loyal.

TENACITY OF THE COMSTOCK

THE recent strike in the Union of Virginia City recalls some of the interesting features of that most spectacular camp. Notwithstanding the decline in silver and the allurement of other and richer camps the old Comstock has not lost its grasp on the old timers who cling to memories of the past and believe the time will come when the old Comstock will regain its dimmed luster. Books have been written on the ups and downs of the Comstock, the manipulation that gathered fortunes for the bonanza kings and built blocks of marble palaces in San Francisco, and the glories of the early days when the name of Comstock was one to conjure by. The Union in which the latest strike is reported has had a range of from 15 cents to $200 a share. The former price was quoted in January, 1878, and eight months later the stock sold for an even $200 when Flood and Mackay paid $1,000,000 in U. S. 4 per cent bonds for 5,000 shares held by Robert Sherwood, a Virginia City jeweler. This comes close to being the record transaction of the Comstock although numerous individual sales daily ran far in excess of that figure. When Sharon and Ralston cornered Mexican the stock was forced from three cents to $875 a share and the stock gamblers went broke in the collapse when it turned out that the manipulators had unloaded their holdings.

The bonanza group thought the showing in the Sierra Nevada adjoining the Union would make into another bonanza like the Con. Virginia which was getting out of ore and therefore the regnant interests began buying Sierra which went from a few cents a share to $287. When it came to crosscutting it was found the Sierra had only a small seam and the stock broke in two in a single call selling down to $125 and rapidly receding to twenty-five cents a share. After the big excitement in Union the company took out over a million dollars but had to abandon work in the lower levels on account of water drowning the pumps.

San Francisco is no piker. Taxpayers subscribed over $1,000,000 to save the monuments of the Exposition but, when the supervisors proposed adding 5 cents per $100 to the tax levy there was a roar against the injustice that could be heard at Tia Juana. Millions for defence, but not a cent for tribute.

Since the commencement of hostilities the United States exported $71,000,000 in silver and received in trade $120,000,000 in gold. There is a market for all the silver that can be produced.

The prosecution in the Elko county poisoning case begged for time to prepare its case. The charge is the emanation of a hop fiend and the trial is no longer a farce. It's a scream.

If any of the editors of Nevada had as little grey matter in their cerebral cavity as some of the lawyers who assail them there would not be any need for muzzles or sandbags.

Gen. Von Kluck, the hero of the Marne, has come back from the hospital with all his old pep and is at the front again. Dr. Osler should stick a pin right there.

"The Unchastened Woman," is the latest New York dramatic success, but in Nevada the howling burlesque is "The Unchastened Bar."

You always can hire somebody to act as scavenger if you have the money, represents the soliloquy of an Elko editor.

Only a bully would attempt to coerce a man, be he editor or mucker, by hiding behind the law.

CLIPPED AND CREDITED

Anyway, it is to be hoped that Ambassador Gerard had a pleasant visit at Verdun while he and the kaiser talked about things and dodged French shells.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.
